Born in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, the archipelago of the Azores was formed by volcanic activity and belongs to the Portuguese territory. S. Miguel, the most exuberant of its islands, is a paradise covered in dense nature with hundreds of plant species that exhibit their different shades of green along the landscapes.

Resulting from a wonderful trip through the interior of S.Miguel, the Azores chandelier recreates a special weeping willow found near a lagoon and freezes a moment of contemplation. A luxuriant lighting piece made with handcrafted brass leaves that subtly allow the rays of light to pierce them and illuminate the surroundings as a gift of nature.
